Objective of Convention and Greeting (大会趣旨と挨拶)

In the past fifty years, Japan's ELT has experienced a major evolutionary change, from teaching/learning method to teacher education, from materials development to classroom management, and from language proficiency to the social awareness of the role of English as a communication tool. The Japan Association of College English Teachers (JACET) has consistently played a pivotal role in advancing research in this area since its foundation in 1962. In the days when English education has become a more complicated discipline mixed with psychology, pedagogy and IT technology, there is more of demand for learners as well as teachers to meet their aims. Upon our celebration of our 50th convention featuring leading international ELT researchers and practitioners, JACET plans to reflect on the past 50 years of our achievement in English education and to begin the discussions on what path (or paths) we all — teachers and learners — should take in the next half century.

It is my privilege to present you a word of greetings as Chair of the Organizing Committee of the JACET 50th Commemorative International Convention which will be held at Seinan Gakuin University in Fukuoka, Japan, from August 31 to September 2, 2011.

The Committee is now preparing for an attractive program of the convention. The JACET 50th Convention will include four Plenary Speeches and three JACET 50 Symposia (see page 3). In the meantime, we have already screened and selected 163 presentations and 13 graduate student-presentations as part of annual programs. We believe that the JACET 50th Convention will offer researchers and teachers exciting and productive avenues for further professional development which is necessary not only in Japan but also in the world. We hope that the convention will be a great opportunity to help us network on a global scale and lead us to a productive route for ELT in the world.

In closing, we all look forward to seeing you and a lot of participants in Fukuoka in August.

TERAUCHI Hajime, Ph. D.

(Chair of the Organizing Committee of the JACET 50th Commemorative International Convention)

Welcome Greeting (会場校挨拶)

As President of Seinan Gakuin University, it is my privilege to welcome you to our university for the JACET 50th Commemorative International Convention. We are honored that you have chosen Seinan Gakuin University as the site for this milestone in your history.

In the 50 year history of JACET, you have made an incalculable contribution to teaching of English in universities throughout Japan. Over the years, the needs of students and society and the challenges of teaching those students have changed radically. As teachers of English, you have prepared generations of students to work in business, government, and education. Your contributions have been exponentially magnified through the students you have taught and trained.

As you stand on the threshold of your next 50 years, the work of JACET and language education is more important than ever. It goes without saying that the global village continues to shrink. Without a working knowledge of English, and other foreign languages, it will be impossible to live productive lives, making contributions in all areas of society.

I trust that your three days in Fukuoka and at Seinan Gakuin University will be productive. The Organizing Committee and Local Convention Committee have worked hard to secure well known speakers and to have a beneficial convention. As you listen, learn, and are challenged for your work in college English education, I trust that you will return to your respective institutions enriched, encouraged and better equipped to continue providing high level English education.

BARKLEY Gary W., Ph.D

(President of Seinan Gakuin University)
