Foreword

Naoko Ozeki
Vice-President of JACET
Director, Committee of Academic Publication
(Meiji University)

To JACET members and supporters,

JACET publishes influential articles in the JACET Journal, JACET International Convention Selected Papers, and JAAL in JACET Proceedings, each of which is published annually, and provides an incentive for both researchers and instructors to do further research and improve their practice.

Recently, JACET has been going through changes in terms of its evaluation of papers submitted to the JACET Journal and JACET International Convention Selected Papers. One of the most noticeable changes is the area of globalization. For example, since we have established affiliations with various organizations such as JALT (Japan), AILA (international), ALAK (Korea), ETA-ROCK (Taiwan), and RELC (Singapore), we have invited international plenary speakers and guest speakers to our international conferences and summer seminars. We have also invited these speakers to write articles about the topics they talked about at the conferences for the JACET Journals and Selected Papers. We hope that those who could not participate in the conferences or summer seminars will be able to share the main ideas and insights of these speakers' presentations by reading their articles.

Another example of globalization is JACET's use of international reviewers. For example, in JACET Journals 62 and 63, Dr. Azlin Zaiti Binti Zainal from MELTA (Malaysian English Language Teaching Association) reviewed articles. This is beneficial for contributors and the publication committee because papers are evaluated based on an international perspective. The committee would like to increase the number of international reviewers.

As for the areas of research of the JACET Journal and Selected Papers, we have rearranged the areas. Because submissions tended to be concentrated in one or two areas of research, we used to have trouble finding enough reviewers. Therefore, we have created new areas of study such as motivation and cross-cultural communication and assigned new reviewers for these areas.

Finally, I would like to mention that reviewing submissions that do not follow APA format is a time-consuming task. Because only a few contributors follow APA format, we have decided to add the criterion of the format into the evaluation of the paper. From now on, correct use of APA format will be a requirement for having a paper accepted in JACET publications. We are looking forward to reading your future submissions to our journals.

Report from the JACET Headquarters

Report from the JACET Committee on Academic Affairs

Director
Masaki Oda
(Tamagawa University)

In the 2017 academic year, the Committee of Academic Affairs was established (Chair: Prof. Masao Aikawa, Kyoto University of Foreign Studies). The task of the committee includes international exchanges formerly handled by the Committee of International Affairs. JACET currently has interchange agreements with the following academic organizations abroad; ALAK (Korea), CELEA (China), ETA-ROC (Taiwan), KATE (Korea), MELTA (Malaysia), PKETA (Korea), RELC (Singapore) and Thailand TESOL (Thailand). JACET also has an interchange agreement with JALT. We send our delegates to their conferences and in turn, we receive their delegates to our annual international conferences. In the past few years, the committee has been working hard to develop strategies for collaboration with these organizations beyond the exchange of delegates. One example is the exchange of journal reviewers with MELTA. In cooperation with the committee on academic publications, a JACET member served as a reviewer for the journal published by MELTA, while a MELTA member has reviewed manuscripts submitted for our journal. We are planning to expand this type of cooperation with other organizations.

JACET has been an affiliate of AILA

(Association Internationale de Linguistique Appliquée) since 1984. As an organization representing Japan, we have created JAAL in JACET to promote applied linguistics in Japan for more than three decades. At that time English language teaching was believed to have been the main subject of inquiry in applied linguistics. Some of you may remember that we hosted AILA 1999 at Waseda University in which 2,300 scholars participated. This was a historical event for the applied linguistics community in Japan. However, it left us a big homework.

It has been AILA's policy to have only one affiliate in a country. While it was evident from the successful conference in 1999 that applied linguistics in Japan is neither limited to English linguistics nor to language teaching, one has to join JACET to receive benefits for AILA affiliate members, including discount registration fees for AILA International conferences which are held once in three years. In many regions such as Korea, ALAK is an organization for applied linguistics (and AILA's affiliate in Korea) which is distinguished from English language teaching organizations such as KATE or PKETA. In contrast, JAAL is still 'in JACET' for historical reasons, and thus JACET pays AILA its membership fee for 200 members without specifying individuals. A few other affiliates do the same and this was the best possible option that AILA and JACET could agree upon back in 1984.

Due to the diversification of applied linguistics in Japan both in terms of language(s) we deal with, and the topics covered, we need to collaborate with other academic organizations in Japan in order to help develop applied linguistics in Japan further. In the past few years, JACET has invited delegates from several academic organizations specialized in teaching languages other than English to present posters, while beginning to discuss possible collaboration.

One of such attempts was the 1st JAAL in JACET meeting which was held at Takachiho University in Tokyo on December 1st, 2018 in cooperation with JACET's committee on research promotion as well as SIGs. It was a successful event, and our committee will be involved in future meetings more actively.

Another important AILA related activity is AILA-East Asia. Since 2014, three AILA affiliates in the region; ALAK, CELEA and JACET take turns and organize AILA East-Asia symposia corresponding to the theme of their annual conferences. JACET hosted its 5th symposium titled "Assuring Quality Outcomes in English Education" in the 57th International Convention in Sendai featuring panelists; Prof. Junkyu Lee (ALAK), Prof. Shaoqian Luo (CELEA) and Prof. Atsuko Watanabe (JACET: Bunkyo University) and discussants; Prof. Haemon Lee (ALAK), Prof. Xingwel Miao (CELEA) and Masaki Oda (JACET: Tamagawa University), and chaired by Prof. Chitose Asaoka (JACET: Dokkyo University). During the conference, the three organizations have confirmed that we would strengthen our relationships by exploring possibilities for theme based collaborative research projects, as well as publications as with the cases of other international exchanges discussed earlier. The 6th AILA East Asia symposium will be held at the ALAK conference in 2019 and the second round of collaborations will be completed. I would like to take this opportunity to thank Prof. Hisako Yamauchi, former Vice President of JACET who has also served as AILA EB member-at-large for many years for her ground work at initial stages of AILA East Asia.
